So you just admitted to saying you have knowledge of trying to be subpoenaed right was sent to the wrong address. While improper service can be a basis for challenging a subpoena, ignoring it entirely could have serious consequences, such as a judge issuing an arrest warrant. 🗿

Here's why and what you should consider:

- You have actual knowledge: Even if it was sent to the wrong address, you are now aware of the subpoena and its contents. The argument that you didn't receive it properly might be less effective if you were aware of it and chose to disregard it.
- Risk of contempt: Disobeying a court order, including a subpoena, can lead to contempt of court charges. This could result in fines or even imprisonment.
- Legal implications: If the service is truly improper, you may have grounds to challenge it by filing a motion to quash service, according to On-Call Legal. However, this needs to be done
